Comfort and Style From Paoli Takes Three Forms for New Modrian Guest Seating

ORLEANS, INDIANA, June 2008 – Paoli introduces the Modrian series of wood and upholstery guest seating. Featuring design adaptability that facilitates stylishly coordinated seating arrangements for public and private business spaces, Modrian is available in three, comfort-focused style options.

According to chair designer Marcy King, president of Marcy King Designs, Modrian's design options allow specifiers to emphasize comfort and style, using different looks within the same product family, throughout an entire interior space. These options include:

- all-wood slat back with an upholstered seat
- upholstered closed arm version, combining a wood slat back with half-upholstered back
- three-quarter upholstered back with open arms.

Front to back “soft” wood style

Offering a fresh clean-lined aesthetic, Modrian has a curved profile from front and side views. The wood front leg and arm maintain a gentle curve that invites the end user into the seat. Front legs curve gently toward the back as a softer and more subtle introduction to the prominent wood elements at the front of the chair design. Modrian is available in all standard Paoli wood finishes and upholstery options.

“The marketplace is constantly in search of exciting seating options at a good price point.” said King. “Once the user experiences the chair's embrace, he or she will find comfort in the soft, subtle curve of the arms and back rail assembly, with or without the upholstered inserts.”

Marcy King, president of Dexter, Maine-based Marcy King Designs, offers clients over 15 years of design experience, with an extensive knowledge of furniture design, construction, and finishing. Her portfolio ranges from contract seating and tables to residential casegoods and custom furniture designs. She also designed the Paoli Miraval contemporary seating introduced in 2007.

Specializing in office and contract furnishings, Paoli has been a manufacturer of fine wood furniture since 1926. An HNI company, Paoli's mission is to create long-term product value while exceeding customer expectations. Key to the success of this mission is business simplification, continuous improvement, process and product innovation, and integrity.
